- “If MLS accepts the temporary license, it means you are saying that the terms are OK. Brokers can make that bad decision, but the MLS Board has a duty to honor the participant wishes and you cannot with this current agreement.”

Listing and Data Protections

ListHub has agreements in place with our publishers to provide consistent protections for members' listing data. ListHub worked with the industry, including brokers, MLSs, consultants and others, to identify the core values and expectations that listing content owners have with respect to the use of their listing information when syndicated to a third party website.

Some of the core tenets that exist today in the ListHub Publisher agreements:

- Listing data may only be used for consumer display
- Restrictions on use of listing data for any derivative works or other non- display uses
- Listing data may not be used after it is off-market
- The content owner maintains all Intellectual Property rights
- Publisher must display a set of minimum fields including price, address, broker name, etc.
- Publisher must accept a broker-authorized, MLS-sourced listing as the highest ranking listing feed and cannot overwrite this data with listing data from a third party
- Publisher must route any consumer leads to the email address designated by the broker as the lead email address (certain exceptions exist related to pre-existing agent products)
- Publisher may not re-syndicate or distribute listing data to any third party – Publisher may have rights to power the search on a third party site if authorized in the agreement
- Publisher must update site at least daily
- Publisher must provide notice for any changes to its terms and conditions
- Publisher shall abide by any state laws regarding display of real estate content
- Publisher must provide error logs for any listing that is not accepted, and provide a direct URL for any listing that is accepted
- Publisher must provide search impressions, detail views, and lead data for all listings (most use ListHub's java script tracking technology but a limited few still provide file-based metrics on a daily basis)
- Brokers have right to opt-out at any time (no long-term commitment)
- Publishers must use the currently supported version of the RETS syndication specification

Decisions for Brokers: Setting Up Company Data

After the Registration Process you will be able to “Manage Brokerage”

- Basic Data: Complete your company name, brokerage information, upload a 200x200 logo.
- Primary Administrator: You will be asked to identify the Primary Administration (not Public) that will receive syndication correspondence on your companies behalf. It could be the broker, and office administrator or key agent you put in charge of this task.
- Lead Management: The leads are automatically filtered to the listing agent for each listing. You can change that to the broker, a marketing person or someone you put in charge of leads. You can also decide if the listing agent can override your assignment of another lead recipient.
- Listing Data: You have the ability to determine what information appears as contact for each listing. This is defaulted to the Listing Agent with Listing office contact information. You can chose to limit it to the office data as well.
- Listing Redirect: ListHub automatically creates an online flyer type page that all syndicators much link to when a consumer selects more information. (see example on next page). You can, if you have the technical capability, request that ListHub instead redirects the listing link to YOUR website.

Decisions for Brokers: How will you manage users in your company:

- Invite users to send a link to register, if desired.
- Agents with listings can get invites, those without don't.
- Add, update, or remove users in your brokerage. Send agents or managers invitations to create a ListHub login. Give agents permission to redirect traffic to the agent Web site.
